Sometimes, the grind of day-to-day business can wear your staff down. Why not consider a creative team building session led by Camp Kawartha's award winning educators? Each team building session is crammed full of thought-provoking, fun-filled activities, designed to revitalize and energize your staff.

ENERGIZE

INNOVATE

Themes we explore include:

- Fostering positive relationships among employees
- Encouraging innovative thinking
- Valuing different approaches to working within a team environment
- Recognizing the power and potential of a team
- Honouring personal goals and understanding what makes for meaningful support within a team context
- Exploring strategies that make for effective communication
- Recognizing that team members communicate in a variety of ways

PROGRAMS:

Our Team Building Tasks consist of a series of creative challenges we ask your team to solve. Each task becomes progressively more difficult as the program unfolds. And every task is associated with a particular theme. For example: strategic thinking, effective communication, leadership and of course, co-operation. We use a number of innovative debriefing strategies to explore and unpack these themes. Here are just a few examples of Camp Kawartha's innovative team building activities:

So What Kind of Team Member Are You? Our facilitators creatively lead you through a task that helps each of your team members discover how they function within a team environment. What other team members do you work best with? What strategies can your team foster to help each member feel valued and included? What behaviours harness the potential of your team and what behaviours inhibit productivity?

Lycra tube: This stretchy material made of lycra, slips around the backs of 4 to 6 participants. When participants push back on the tube, the momentum "flings" participants across the tube. We handle this in a safe and supportive way.

Themes:

- The value of clear and precise communication. What kind of language facilitates positive dialogue between group members? What types of phrases are known for creating barriers to positive dialogue?
- The importance of anticipating needs and being mindful of the needs and abilities of others.
- Recognizing the power and potential of active and reflective listening.

Marble challenge: Using a series of plastic tubes with the ends cut in a variety of shapes, participants work to fit these tubes together so that a marble can slide down its length and into a bowl.

Themes:

- Strategic thinking. How can we creatively generate solutions to problems? How can we promote creativity and innovation in our work environment?
- Steps to problem solving. What are six simple steps to solving a problem? How can we encourage our team members to "buy in" to solving the problem?

Electric Grid: Participants must determine how to navigate through an imaginary "electric" grid.

Themes:

- The power and potential of collective thinking.
- Importance of focusing on a given task.
- How to link together various modes of thinking into a cohesive whole.

Group Writing: Each participant holds onto a single rope attached to a disk (12 ropes in all). Embedded in the disk is a marker. Participants must work together to write a phrase provided by the instructor. Participants may not touch the disk with their hands.

Themes:

- Aligning our purpose. How can a team agree on common goals? What is the danger of too many independent players on a team?
- Coordinating our efforts. Synchronizing our efforts leads to stronger, more productive team.

Challenge by Adventure: We have more than 13 challenge elements designed to help your team discover the value of trust, the power of support and the potential of committed and dedicated team. Whether sailing high on our Flying Squirrel or navigating the ever shifting Dangle-A -Maze, participants experience the thrill of real adventure and learn first-hand how an ethic of striving, creates tangible and lasting results. This option is available at our main facility near Lakefield only.
